- The Basket Analyzer project simulates an e-commerce environment by generating synthetic customer transaction data, applying the Apriori algorithm to identify product associations, and segmenting customers using K-means clustering, followed by data visualization.

Face Recognition | OpenCV, Python Github
- The script uses OpenCV to perform face detection on an image by loading a pre-trained Haar Cascade classifier. It converts the image to grayscale and detects faces using the `detectMultiScale()` function. Detected faces are highlighted with blue rectangles on the original image. Finally, it displays the detected image.
